VALUABLE IMPROVEMENT FOR CLEANING FEATHERS.

THE Subscriber takes this method to inform the citizens of Bangor and vicinity, that he has put in operation one of O. Badger's Patent Feather Renovators, acknowledged by thousands to be the best method ever taken to clean and restore Feathers to their original lightness and elasticity.

By this process old and much worn Feathers are made to have the appearance of new, and new Feathers are very much improved by taking rid of all dirt, dust, moths and bad smell which all Feathers have in a greater or less degree according to the time and manner they have been taken from the animal.

The Subscriber flatters himself that all who will please to call and witness the operation, will acknowledge it to be a good improvement and worthy of patronage.

Feathers taken from and returned home in neat order as shall please the owner, or no pay will be required.

Feather Beds and Feathers are invited to call and examine the machine and operation.

N. B. Feathers taken in the morning will be ready for the evening.

A TREASURY BANK.

The Government, through those in its confidence, is daily throwing out hints, and uttering sentiments which show almost conclusively that an effort is making to prepare the public mind for the recommendation and establishment of a Bank founded upon the credit and revenues of the government; in a word, for the establishment of an engine of corruption which will throw into the shade all others that have ever existed in our country! a Government Bank, in which the President and Cabinet officers are to be the supreme dictators every Custom House Officer and Post Master to be a Director, and the pockets of these office holders to constitute the National Treasury!

We cannot contemplate this bold step of the party who now surround the President, without feeling astonishment at the means to which men will resort to effect a favorite object. We have no doubt that from the first attack upon the U. S. Bank, it has been the design of Martin Van Buren to procure the establishment of a Treasury Bank. Neither have we any doubt that Gen. Jackson lent himself to this object, and that they together pursued that course of policy, which to them appeared best calculated to effect the indissoluble connexion of SWORD and PURSE, which must be kept distinct in all free governments. Mr. Van Buren saw the tremendous power in store for him, could he obtain the Presidency with such an institution at his hand and under his immediate control; he had already his safety fund system of Banking in operation in New York, and by which he has ever since controlled that State; through his influence the powerless local Banks were leagued together, and became mighty through union. Said Gen Root in a roasterly speech against the project, which however, was suppressed, this safety fund law conferred a power upon the government greater than that wielded by Philip of Macedon.

As soon as it was fixed upon that Mr. Van Buren was to be the successor of Gen. Jackson, he saw the necessity of something to take the place of the old hero's personal popularity. He saw the money power of the nation was the only substitute, and he determined to possess it. Overtures were unblushingly made, as can be proved by many witnesses, to the President and directors of the late Bank of the U. States, to come into this unholy alliance, and lend their aid to this corrupt and corrupting scheme, but the Bank honestly and firmly refused to permit the political character of its officers to become a question; they were elected for their fitness, the object of the Bank was to aid the government and the people in their commercial transactions, and political schemes, and political corruption, never should receive countenance or support from it it had been created for a specified object, and to [illegible] this object it would pursue to the end, whatever might be the fate of the institution. This noble and final reply, sealed the fate of the Bank. Some other plan must be adopted. Hence we see Gen. Jackson who denouncing the Bank, gravely suggesting the propriety of establishing a Bank [illegible] and credit of the Government. It was not a Bank he opposed, it was the Bank. Here hi[illegible]

"A Bank of the United States is, in any re[illegible] for the purse and sword [illegible] a Bank of the United States [illegible] the [illegible] which may be [illegible]

[illegible]

"fiscal operations of the government, I submit "to the wisdom of the legislature whether a national one, founded upon the credit of the government and its revenues, might not be devised, which would avoid all constitutional difficulties; and at the same time secure all the "advantages to the government and country "that were expected to result from the present "Bank." [Gen. Jackson's Message to Congress, 1830.]

This portion of the message was referred, in the House of Representatives, to the Committee of Ways and Means, composed of a majority of Jackson men, who reported unanimously against the project, and at great length set forth the evils which would result from it. It was a masterly production, from the pen of the Hon. Geo. McDuffie and entirely put to rest for the time being, the presumptuous project. The following are among the closing paragraphs of the Report.

"The Bank of the United States now employs "five hundred agents, in the various parts of the "Union, where its offices are established. "From this fact some idea may be formed of the "great addition which would be made to the "patronage of the Executive Government, by "the establishment of such a bank as the one "under consideration."

"No government of which the Committee "have any knowledge, except perhaps the despotism of Russia, was ever invested with a "patronage at once so prodigious in its character. In the most desperate financial extremities, no other European government has ever "ventured upon an experiment so perilous. If "the whole patronage of the English monarchy "were concentrated in the hands of the American Executive, it may be well doubted whether the public liberty would be so much endangered by it as it would by this vast pecuniary "machine, which would place in the hands of "every administration fifty millions of dollars, "as a fund for rewarding political partizans.

"Such would be the depositories, acting, not "under the public eye but under the protecting "mystery of a sort of concealment and secrecy, "deemed indispensable in banking operations, to "whom, not only the whole treasury of the "Union would be confided, to be squandered, "in profligate favouritism, but the tremendous "power of putting the whole property of the "nation under mortgage, for the redemption of "the bills issued at their discretion. To say "nothing of the utter insecurity of the public "revenues under such a system, a new species "of legislative power, unknown to the constitution, would be committed to these irresponsible bank directors, of which no human sagacity can predict the consequences."

"No matter by what means an administration "might get into power, with such a tremendous "engine in their hands it would be almost impossible to displace them without some miraculous interposition of Providence. Deeply "impressed with the conviction that the weak "point of a free government is the absorbing "tendency of executive patronage, and sincerely believing that the proposed bank would invest that branch of the government with a "weight of moneyed influence, more dangerous "in its character, and more powerful in its operation, than the entire mass of its present patronage, the Committee have felt that they "were imperiously called upon, by the highest "considerations of public duty, to express the "views they have presented, with the frankness "and freedom demanded by the occasion."

But notwithstanding a quietus was given to this nefarious project by this able and convincing report, Mr. Van Buren never lost sight of the game, and it is beyond question, in our mind, that the Experiments upon the currency, the war upon the Banks, and finally the blow up of the Pet Bank system, and the suspension of specie payments, were all designed before hand, or made subservient afterward, first to create a prejudice in the minds of a great many honest people against the United States Bank, and all Banks then, by associating this anti-bank mania with the cause of the great party of which Van was the head, secure his elevation to the Presidency then, by the last movement to impair the confidence of the community in Banks give the administration apparent cause to relinquish the Pet Bank system, abuse these agents, as they have already done, and start anew the project of a Treasury Bank, by declaring that the losses suffered, and the inconveniences experienced from Banking institutions, rendered necessary the entire separation of Bank and State! and that this object could only be effected by the creation of every office-holder's pocket into a branch of a Treasury Bank, while the great pocket at Washington, supplied from the crumbs drawn from the local pockets, would be a nucleus around which would flutter all the office seekers, and the Treasury-fed adherents of the President.

This is a grand scheme to be sure, but fortunately for the country, and unfortunately for the office-holders, the People have yet to pass judgment upon a proposition which should be looked upon with serious alarm by every man who would preserve the purity and freedom of our institutions.

That there is good ground for belief that we have the views of the administration upon this Treasury Bank, we shall endeavor to show, and if such a scheme is entertained, the people cannot be too quick to take the alarm or too soon ready to resist to the last, this encroachment upon the liberty and happiness of themselves and those who are to come after them.

POLITICS. For the few weeks only which precede the election, readers must, of course, expect to see their paper devoted, almost exclusively, to this all engrossing topic. After the election has gone by, and our State Government [illegible] for another year, we shall devote our columns in [illegible] news and miscellaneous reading. Congress will be in session, and we may safely promise [illegible] for the next three weeks, those [illegible] every quarter paragraph, without [illegible] the particular attention of the readers of [illegible] to the speech of Mr. Adams [illegible] and the predictions of [illegible] in Congress, [illegible] of [illegible] party should be carefully [illegible] by all [illegible]

CONVENTION OF BUSINESS MEN.

THE Convention of business men, to take into consideration the present distressing state of the country, and to consult, without party bias, upon the remedy, assembled at Philadelphia on Wednesday of last week, according to notice published in nearly all the papers in the country. The Convention, it is said, was composed of many able and experienced men, whose arguments on the several questions presented would have done honor to the Halls of Congress. After much consultation, the Convention adjourned to some future day to be designated, after adopting resolutions to the following effect: that it was the duty of every intelligent, patriotic citizen, of any and every party, on the prostration of business, the destruction of credit, and the derangement of the currency of the country, to unite in an endeavor to make matters better; throwing aside all partisan feelings; not seeking to cast censure upon others, but presenting truth to the people, let where it might, that they looked upon the present state of affairs as being the result of various causes, and first to the withdrawal of the public funds from their natural channels, and the consequent failure to meet commercial engagements second the effects of the distribution bill, in the trouble it occasioned the Banks to transfer it to the remote points to which it was necessary it should be forwarded third, the excessive issues of Banks, and the abuse of Bank credit fourth, speculation in lands, and every thing else, by men of small means, who were too anxious to get rich in a day fifth, neglect of agriculture excess of importations, and lastly, the political excitement of the times, which has made the party bearing the test of every public national measure an excitement by which the business and monied institutions of the country have become involved in the conflicts of parties. The Convention next resolved, that gold and silver constituted the constitutional standard of value, that Bank Bills not redeemable in specie, operate unjustly and unequally upon the people, and that their circulation is subversive of the best interests of the community that a well regulated and well guarded system of Bank credits, by which bills at all times redeemable in gold and silver, are made to supply the business wants of the community, constitutes one of the peculiar characteristics of a free people, and is essentially necessary in promoting their prosperity and happiness that the happiness of the people cannot be promoted but by a system of protection to all the great interests of the country that the Convention disapprove of Custom House credits on importations that the cultivation of silk is an object of great importance to the country, and would go far to diminish importations that the avails of the Public Lands, ought to be applied to the promotion of objects of a public character in the several States of the Union that the time has arrived for Congress to exercise the power of establishing a uniform system of Bankruptcy throughout the U. States that all attempts to excite the prejudices of any class of citizens against another, are subversive of the fundamental principles of society, and tend to destroy the happiness of all that in the conflicts of mere partisans, and the subjecting of every public measure to the supervision of party, they discovered principles subversive of personal independence, and ruinous to the best interests of the country finally, that deluded speculators are warned to quit the delusive mazes in which they have been involved, and return to the practice of industry and economy, and the enjoyment of their solid rewards.

SENSIBLE AND ORIGINAL REMARKS. The following remark in relation to the war on banks and bank charters was made by Thomas D. Ewing, in the course of a speech which he delivered at Steubenville, Ohio, on the 5th of July: "Let me tell you, gentlemen," said he, "let me tell you, that the right to repeal a charter of a bank, includes also a right of the very same body of men, or any others, to repeal the tenure by which you hold your lands, your property, or your every homes. They are all nothing but paper and parchment after all, and the title by which you retain your possessions is not more sacred than the title under which a banking corporation prosecutes its business."

General MURPHY, of Ohio, in a speech to the people, alluding to the ruin which mis-government had brought upon the country, and the comparative ease with which the people might have averted it, said "They stand at home that they might save the profits of a day's labor, when, by going to the polls, they could have saved the hard earnings of twenty years."

The New Hampshire Legislature, during its late session, was guilty of one of the most contemptible acts of party legislation on record. It see[illegible] there are two or three Whig Registers of Probate in the State, who were appointed before the new dominant party came into power, and whom they cannot conveniently oust from their places. The Legislature, according to a decision of the Supreme Court, has no power to remove them, and so, as a dernier resort, a law was passed reducing the salaries of all the Registers appointed prior to Jun[illegible] 1836, 1830. Several of the Registers appointed before that time were Van Buren men, and resigned forthwith, but were immediately reappointed and their salaries go on as usual. The Whigs "held on," at the last dates, but whether they will permit themselves to be driven from office by this strata[illegible] or whether they will continue to perform [illegible] duties, for the purpose of defeating the plan of the party, we know not. The Ta[illegible] Regulators vs. the Loco Foco Irregulars. The Times, the organ of the first, and the Post, the organ of the second, keep up an irregular fire, the one upon the other. The Post had advised an abandonment of the Tammany 700, because democracy cannot walk with them, and the Times [illegible] to say, let the Post and its clan of Buren [illegible] go, [illegible] without them. It is not probable that the two sections of the party whose principles are so diverse will walk much longer together. [N. York Ex[illegible]

August, 10, 1837.

Mr. Editor,—I want you to publish, in your Courier of this week, if you have space, the vote in Congress on the famous bill distributing the surplus revenue among the States. Colonel Parks was, at that time, in Congress, and many want to know how he voted. That was a question, in which his constituency were very much interested. It was carrying out that righteous and true policy which lays a tax on the luxuries imported into the country to support Government, and it was the first entering wedge for distributing the proceeds of the sales of our immense quantities of public lands among the people. And why should not this money be distributed among the people? They have paid all of our public debt and after paying the salaries of all the officers, surely the surplus should go into their own pockets. Besides if the distribution of the money had commenced in 1834, according to the provisions of Mr. Clay's Land Bill, we should have had none of the overtrading and speculation which has almost ruined the country, because the 40,000,000 of money would have been scattered into the hands of millions of people instead of being put into the pet banks in New York and Boston, and other large cities, where it has been loaned out to merchants to induce excessive importations of goods from England and to speculators to monopolize the public lands.

Now, Mr. Editor, I want you to publish without any political editorial the vote on depositing this money. It want to see who voted Yea and who voted Nay. It is well known that the question was whether speculators and political partizans should have it put into Banks from whom they could borrow it, or whether it should be deposited with the People. I want to see on whose side Col. Parks voted, whether it was for the People or the Pet Banks.

A POOR MAN.

In compliance with the request of our correspondent, we give the following extract from the Journal of Congress:

"At the suggestion of Messrs. Morris and R. Garland the House concurred in the several verbal amendments to the amendment.

"Mr Parks then spoke at some length in opposition to the distribution principles contained in the bill.

"The bill being on its passage, Mr Loyall called for the yeas and nays, which were ordered, and were as follows:

BENTON ONCE MORE. The editor of the Lowell Courier publishes an extract from the letter of a respectable gentleman of St. Louis to his friend, a merchant in Lowell, describing the course to be pursued by the administration, from the lips of no less a personage than the redoubtable cravated Col. Benton himself. What will the Albany Republican Committee say to this? Will the Argus content itself with a simple expression of dissent from their mongrel Address, or will it applaud to the echo of the sanctument, which will undoubtedly be carried still farther? One thing is evident as noonday, there is a tremendous fissure in the tory party, in which M. Van Buren endeavors to insert his fingers, the log will close up, and like the presumptuous boy and ancient fool, he will be bitten by a 'roaring lion.' Already are his first mutterings audible.

"In an hour's conversations to-day with Colonel , who, by the way, is a personal friend of Benton, he told me that in conversation a long time with Benton, a few days since, on the currency, the course intended to be pursued by the administration was not to change its policy in the least in regard to the Treasury Circular, to go against a national bank, to go against all paper issues whatever, and in order to redeem the government from debt, to bring in all the public land immediately into market, to be sold for what they will bring, and for specie alone. Again to have government banks of discount and deposite, without issuing paper. This is the course to be pursued by the Administration says Benton. He is in correspondence with the party from all parts of the country. They are preparing to act in concert. The above course is the only one intended to be pursued, there can be no doubt. My authority is good, and can be relied on. The sooner every business man closes his business, the better, for general ruin is coming [illegible] It is to be seen whether there are enough in the ranks of the [illegible] party to follow in their career."

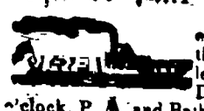
ARRANGEMENTS OF THE KENNEBEC AND BOSTON STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY 1837



THE superior Steam Packet NEW ENGLAND, Nathaniel Kimball, Master, will leave Gardiner every MONDAY and FRIDAY, at 3 o'clock, P. M. and Bath at 6 o'clock P. M.

Leave Lewis's Wharf, Boston, for Bath and Gardiner, every WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY, at 7 o'clock, P. M.

Carriages will be in readiness to take passengers to and from Hallowell, Augusta and Waterville, on the arrival of the Boat, and on the days of her sailing.

Hack fare from Augusta 37½ cts.; from Hallowell 25 cents. Books kept at the principal Hotels in Hallowell and Augusta.

FARE.

From Gardiner to Boston,	$4 00	And found.
Berth " "	$3 50
Deck Passengers,	$2 00

The NEW ENGLAND is 4 years old, 175 feet long, and 307 tons burthen. During the past winter she has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired, and the proprietors have spared neither pains nor expense to render her in all respects worthy of public confidence. That she is the fastest boat on the eastern coast is now universally admitted, and her superiority as a sea-boat has been fully proved.

Travellers from the eastern part of Maine to Boston and from Boston eastward, will find this route in many respects preferable to any other. The mail stages from Bangor and Belfast arrive before the departure of the boat; and the boat arrives at Gardiner on her return passages from three to six hours before the departure of the eastern stages; thus affording travellers an opportunity of spending several hours in Gardiner Hallowell and Augusta.

MORISON'S PILLS!!!

F. & I. S. WHITMAN, Agents, Bangor

THE friends of Hygeianism and the public generally, are again cautioned against the unprincipled attempts of apothecaries and quack doctors, to destroy all confidence in these highly valuable and almost indispensable family medicines, by the cry of imposition! exorbitant prices! falsehood! and more than all, by the astonishing benevolence of the craft in imparting to the world their wonderful discovery of the composition of them! that a three dollar packet costs but one shilling—that any person can make them, etc. Counterfeiters also, beware of the law. The British College of Health have recently recovered damages of the sellers and venders of a spurious, dangerous article, in the courts of Massachusetts and New York; and their exclusive right and property in the sale, is firmly established and confirmed in this country.

Two hundred thousand dollars worth of these simple and effective medicines are sold annually in the United States, and injury from them is unheard of. One cause of the high price they bear, is a heavy export duty paid in England; yet they are incomparably cheaper than any patent medicines ever offered, saving, as they do, expensive and protracted bills of sickness.

The genuine article cannot be bought of apothecaries, travellers or pedlers, they being denied the sale throughout the world. The only place in this section where they can be had, is at the store of F. & I. S. WHITMAN, Bangor; (whose signature is labelled on every packet they sell) where may be seen printed reports of recent trials, certificates of cures, etc. Subscriptions received to the Family Adviser and Hygeian Record, a paper published at New York at $1 per annum. nov 19.

NEW ENGLAND HOUSE,
BANGOR, MAINE.

THE Subscriber respectfully informs his friends and the public that he has removed from the Franklin House to the new and elegant house lately erected at the corner of Harlow and Franklin-streets, about six rods north of the Franklin House. He tenders his sincere thanks to the public for their liberal patronage last year at the Franklin House, and solicits the continuation of it in his present situation, pledging himself to attend personally to the wants of those who may call on him, and employing none but good and faithful servants. He will endeavor to make his house equal to any in this city. The New England House is much larger than the Franklin House, which enables him to accommodate a much larger company than he could in his former situation. There is a stable attached to the House, furnished with the best of hay and grain. Ostlers equal to any in the State. Also Horses and Carriages of all descriptions, for the accommodation of those who may wish to hire. A Carriage will always be in readiness to take passengers to and from the boat.

N. B. Seats will be secured in all the lines of stages leaving this city.
